Life beyond crime
New book brings together the perspective of experts across the prisons arena

Paul Crane and Gerard Lemos have been providing practitioners and policy-makers with information on action on social problems since 1994. They have worked with professionals in social housing, local government, criminal justice agencies, schools and voluntary organisations as well as trusts and foundations. The scale of their influence is considerable, as are their professional credentials. Paul Crane is the author of two civil rights handbooks (Trouble with the Law and Gays and the Law) and has a Cambridge University law graduate and now a non-practising solicitor. As a lawyer he specialised in civil rights work and took part in the landmark case before the European Court of Human Rights that led to the decriminalisation of homosexuality in Northern Ireland.

Gerard Lemos leads the organisation’s research team and is the author of many books including The Good Prison: Conscience, crime and punishment which was published in 2014 and was well-reviewed. He has also written for the New York Times, The Guardian and the BBC. As a newsletter professional, I have been aware of their names and faces, and still did not reject him. Sally found someone she could trust.

Connecting the key
“Terror is not a rare experience; it is the norm in prisons. If you are a human being, the prison is a prison. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of violence. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of torture. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of discrimination. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of racism. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of sexual violence. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of economic violence. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of environmental violence. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of religious violence. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of cultural violence. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of political violence.”

Paul Crane: Studied Criminal Law

Don’t take Chances with Your Freedom!
Here are 5 good reasons to call FIRST:
1. One of the UK’s biggest specialist defence firms
2. Led by lawyer previously shortlisted for criminal defence lawyer of the year
3. Proven, specialist expertise in Appeal work
4. Our Advocates are always ready to represent you
5. We don’t give up!

"The lawyers here are not just going through the motions: as a barrister you have to be at your best at all times to satisfy the high standards set by them." (Chambers & Partners 2009)

Social Services Problems?
Care Proceedings?
We Specialise in Acting for Parents
Ring us to arrange a visit

GT Stewart Solicitors
21-22 Camberwell Green London SE5 7AA
Freephone 0800 999 3399
020 8258 6000
Leeds • London • Kent
Members of the Association of Prison Lawyers

0161 653 6295

Life beyond crime
New book brings together the perspective of experts across the prisons arena

Paul Crane and Gerard Lemos have been providing practitioners and policy-makers with information on action on social problems since 1994. They have worked with professionals in social housing, local government, criminal justice agencies, schools and voluntary organisations as well as trusts and foundations. The scale of their influence is considerable, as are their professional credentials. Paul Crane is the author of two civil rights handbooks (Trouble with the Law and Gays and the Law) and has a Cambridge University law graduate and now a non-practising solicitor. As a lawyer he specialised in civil rights work and took part in the landmark case before the European Court of Human Rights that led to the decriminalisation of homosexuality in Northern Ireland.

Gerard Lemos leads the organisation’s research team and is the author of many books including The Good Prison: Conscience, crime and punishment which was published in 2014 and was well-reviewed. He has also written for the New York Times, The Guardian and the BBC. As a newsletter professional, I have been aware of their names and faces, and still did not reject him. Sally found someone she could trust.

Connecting the key
“Terror is not a rare experience; it is the norm in prisons. If you are a human being, the prison is a prison. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of violence. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of torture. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of discrimination. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of racism. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of sexual violence. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of economic violence. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of environmental violence. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of religious violence. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of cultural violence. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of political violence.”

Paul Crane: Studied Criminal Law

Don’t take Chances with Your Freedom!
Here are 5 good reasons to call FIRST:
1. One of the UK’s biggest specialist defence firms
2. Led by lawyer previously shortlisted for criminal defence lawyer of the year
3. Proven, specialist expertise in Appeal work
4. Our Advocates are always ready to represent you
5. We don’t give up!

"The lawyers here are not just going through the motions: as a barrister you have to be at your best at all times to satisfy the high standards set by them." (Chambers & Partners 2009)

Social Services Problems?
Care Proceedings?
We Specialise in Acting for Parents
Ring us to arrange a visit

GT Stewart Solicitors
21-22 Camberwell Green London SE5 7AA
Freephone 0800 999 3399
020 8258 6000
Leeds • London • Kent
Members of the Association of Prison Lawyers

0161 653 6295

Life beyond crime
New book brings together the perspective of experts across the prisons arena

Paul Crane and Gerard Lemos have been providing practitioners and policy-makers with information on action on social problems since 1994. They have worked with professionals in social housing, local government, criminal justice agencies, schools and voluntary organisations as well as trusts and foundations. The scale of their influence is considerable, as are their professional credentials. Paul Crane is the author of two civil rights handbooks (Trouble with the Law and Gays and the Law) and has a Cambridge University law graduate and now a non-practising solicitor. As a lawyer he specialised in civil rights work and took part in the landmark case before the European Court of Human Rights that led to the decriminalisation of homosexuality in Northern Ireland.

Gerard Lemos leads the organisation’s research team and is the author of many books including The Good Prison: Conscience, crime and punishment which was published in 2014 and was well-reviewed. He has also written for the New York Times, The Guardian and the BBC. As a newsletter professional, I have been aware of their names and faces, and still did not reject him. Sally found someone she could trust.

Connecting the key
“Terror is not a rare experience; it is the norm in prisons. If you are a human being, the prison is a prison. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of violence. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of torture. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of discrimination. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of racism. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of sexual violence. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of economic violence. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of environmental violence. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of religious violence. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of cultural violence. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of political violence.”

Paul Crane: Studied Criminal Law

Don’t take Chances with Your Freedom!
Here are 5 good reasons to call FIRST:
1. One of the UK’s biggest specialist defence firms
2. Led by lawyer previously shortlisted for criminal defence lawyer of the year
3. Proven, specialist expertise in Appeal work
4. Our Advocates are always ready to represent you
5. We don’t give up!

"The lawyers here are not just going through the motions: as a barrister you have to be at your best at all times to satisfy the high standards set by them." (Chambers & Partners 2009)

Social Services Problems?
Care Proceedings?
We Specialise in Acting for Parents
Ring us to arrange a visit

GT Stewart Solicitors
21-22 Camberwell Green London SE5 7AA
Freephone 0800 999 3399
020 8258 6000
Leeds • London • Kent
Members of the Association of Prison Lawyers

0161 653 6295

Life beyond crime
New book brings together the perspective of experts across the prisons arena

Paul Crane and Gerard Lemos have been providing practitioners and policy-makers with information on action on social problems since 1994. They have worked with professionals in social housing, local government, criminal justice agencies, schools and voluntary organisations as well as trusts and foundations. The scale of their influence is considerable, as are their professional credentials. Paul Crane is the author of two civil rights handbooks (Trouble with the Law and Gays and the Law) and has a Cambridge University law graduate and now a non-practising solicitor. As a lawyer he specialised in civil rights work and took part in the landmark case before the European Court of Human Rights that led to the decriminalisation of homosexuality in Northern Ireland.

Gerard Lemos leads the organisation’s research team and is the author of many books including The Good Prison: Conscience, crime and punishment which was published in 2014 and was well-reviewed. He has also written for the New York Times, The Guardian and the BBC. As a newsletter professional, I have been aware of their names and faces, and still did not reject him. Sally found someone she could trust.

Connecting the key
“Terror is not a rare experience; it is the norm in prisons. If you are a human being, the prison is a prison. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of violence. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of torture. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of discrimination. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of racism. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of sexual violence. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of economic violence. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of environmental violence. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of religious violence. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of cultural violence. If you are a human being, you can be a victim of political violence.”

Paul Crane: Studied Criminal Law

Don’t take Chances with Your Freedom!
Here are 5 good reasons to call FIRST:
1. One of the UK’s biggest specialist defence firms
2. Led by lawyer previously shortlisted for criminal defence lawyer of the year
3. Proven, specialist expertise in Appeal work
4. Our Advocates are always ready to represent you
5. We don’t give up!

"The lawyers here are not just going through the motions: as a barrister you have to be at your best at all times to satisfy the high standards set by them." (Chambers & Partners 2009)

Social Services Problems?
Care Proceedings?
We Specialise in Acting for Parents
Ring us to arrange a visit

GT Stewart Solicitors
21-22 Camberwell Green London SE5 7AA
Freephone 0800 999 3399
020 8258 6000
Leeds • London • Kent
Members of the Association of Prison Lawyers

0161 653 6295